

Northwestern State University Admissions Guide

Minimum Admission Standards for Readmission – Fall 2023 and Beyond

Who is a Re-entry Student?

A re-entry (re-admitted) student has previously enrolled at an institution, left that institution, and is re-enrolling at the same institution.

What do you need to know for Readmission?

If you have not attended undergraduate studies at NSU within the past three consecutive semesters (including summer), you will need to:

- Complete your application for admission online at the Apply Now link on our website at www.nsula.edu.
- Request OFFICIAL transcripts to be mailed to the NSU Office of Admissions from institutions attended since you last attended NSU (if any).

If you graduated from NSU with an undergraduate degree within the past three semesters (including summer), you will need to reapply, but you are not required to pay another application fee.

If you participated in NSU Dual Enrollment within the past three semesters (including summer), you will need to apply for undergraduate admission, but you will not be required to pay another application fee. You will not be considered a "readmitted" student, but a first-time first-year student if you have not attended a post-secondary institution after your graduation from high school.

If your name has changed since you last attended NSU, please contact the University Registrar's Office at registrar@nsula.edu for instructions on how to officially change your name on your NSU records. Until your request for name change is processed, your records will remain under your previous name.

Please be advised if you have ever attended another college or university, either while in high school or after graduation from high school – you are required to disclose this information to NSU. Failure to disclose past attendance at any post-secondary institution can result in denial of admission and student disciplinary actions.
